IS Arrests

KHALED MIAH

Khaled Miah, a 27-year-old resident of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, was charged in the Western District of Pennsylvania with one count of making interstate threatening communications, one count of influencing, impeding or retaliating against a Federal law enforcement officer, and one count of destruction of records in a federal investigation. According to the affidavit, a search of Miah's electronic devices uncovered "ISIS propaganda videos and documents, extensive research of the Tsarnaev brothers, Omar Mateen, and other terrorists, and communications and self-recordings by MIAH that exhibited his ideological beliefs and support for violence." The government further alleges that Miah, after being visited at his home by law enforcement, used multiple Twitter accounts to harass law enforcement officers and their family members, and to obstruct a federal investigation.

COLE JAMES BRIDGES

Cole James Bridges, a 20-year-old resident of Stowe, Ohio, was arrested and charged with attempting to provide material support to IS and attempting to murder U.S. military service members. The criminal complaint details conversations between Bridges and FBI online covert employee (OCE) whom Bridges believed to be a member of IS. In these conversations, Bridges is alleged to have expressed his support for IS and provided tactical instructions and support for a purported ambush of U.S. soldiers. The complaint details a conversation in which Bridges, a private first class in the U.S. Army, explains that the IS members should "rig the house with explosives And have a group of brothers observe Until the raid starts and then just blow the house up." Bridges is also alleged to have provided the OCE with a video of himself standing in front of an IS flag, promoting the purported IS attack on U.S. soldiers.
